

Bibliotherapy from Ink and Shadows

Books Featuring Powerful Women

Circe by Madeline Miller
Medea by Euripides
Wicked: The Life and Times of the Wicked Witch of the West by Gregory Maguire
Discovery of Witches by Deborah Harkness
The Mists of Avalon by Marion Zimmer Bradley
The Dovekeepers by Alice Hoffman
House of Spirits by Isabel Allende
The Witch of Portobello by Paulo Coelho
Throne of Glass by Sarah J. Maas
Labyrinth Lost by Zoraida Cordova
Children of Blood and Bone by Tomi Adeyemi
Uprooted by Naomi Novik
The Midwife's Apprentice by Karen Cushman
Ella Enchanted by Gail Carson Levine
Malala's Magic Pencil by Malala Yousafzai
The Witch of Blackbird Pond by Elizabeth George Speare
Coraline by Neil Gaiman
Matilda by Roald Dahl

Books to Read Aloud to a Person with a Vision Impairment

Hailstones and Halibut Bones by Mary O'Neill
Where the Sidewalk Ends by Shel Silverstein
The Night Gardener by Jonathan Auxier
When Green Becomes Tomatoes: Poems For All Seasons by Julie Fogliano
The Day the Crayons Quit by Drew Daywalt
James and the Giant Peach by Roald Dahl
House of Light by Mary Oliver

Books for Young Women Struggling to Find Their Way

Jane Eyre
Eleanor Oliphant is Completely Fine
Amber Smith's The Way I Used to Be Little Fires Everywhere

Books About Bullying (For Kids)

The Potato Chip Champ: Discovering Why Kindness Counts by Maria Dismundy
Enemy Pie by Derek Munson
Just Kidding by Nic Stone
The Recess Queen by Alexis O'Neill